

The background is a photograph of a large indoor sports arena, specifically a volleyball court, during the 2024 NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championship. The court is wooden with blue and orange boundary lines. A volleyball net is stretched across the middle. The stands are filled with red seats. Banners for the championship are visible along the top of the stands. The word "sports" is written in a large, dark, sans-serif font, and "imports" is written below it in the same font, with the first two letters "im" in red. The text is centered over the court.

|| SETTING THE STANDARD SINCE 1976

Since 1976, Sports Imports has been at the forefront of volleyball innovation, setting the standard in designing, engineering, and manufacturing premier net systems that elevate the game. From pioneering the iconic red steel pin-stop Senoh poles to launching the industry's first all-carbon volleyball pole, the SI-1, Sports Imports has continually revolutionized the sport. Trusted by over 94% of Division I college programs and countless athletic facilities nationwide, our products are synonymous with safety, durability, and unmatched performance.

As a 100% employee-owned company, we are deeply committed to the growth of volleyball at every level of play, from schools and clubs to the highest stages of competition. Our partnerships with key organizations like the NCAA, LOVB, NJCAA, USAV, NFHS, and AVCA underscore our dedication to supporting the sport's evolution. Today, we proudly stand at the center of volleyball's future, empowering athletes, coaches, and teams with the most elite equipment, and ensuring that the best in volleyball is available to every player, at every level.
